BAY STATE REPUBLICANS

HEAD TICKET WITH M'CALL Democrats Renominate Governor

Walsh. BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Complete returns from yesterday's State primaries show that the Republicans nominated Samuel W. McCall for Governor. There was no contest in the ranks of the Progressives and Democrats, the former naming James Walker, while the Democrats re-named Governor Walsh. In the con-gressional contests virtually all the organization candidates were nominated although in some cases there were spir ited contests.

A new record for small attendance was set in the primaries. The voting was expected to be light, but proved to be even lighter than predicted. Most of the interest was centred in the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Tenth District. Peter F. Tague, of Charlestown, backed by Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, Martin M. Lomasey and Congressman Murray, defeated John A. Keliher, supported by Mayor Curley and many of the latter's adherents, by a majority of about 600 votes. Ited contests.

In Hudson County, where Governor Fielder's forces were arrayed against those of Naval Officer Wittpenn in the Democratic primary, the result seems to be in doubt. The State leadership hinges upon the outcome.

No comparative figures of the total votes of the parties can be given at this time, although it is known that the Progressive vote was very light yester-day. This is partly ascribed to the fact that this party was without the contests which served to bring out the Repub-licans and Democrats and to the further fact that the Progressives in some cases had fused with the Democrats.

ROOSEVELT PRAISES STAND TAKEN BY U.S. IN EUROPEAN WAR

Writes in Outlook That Present Neutrality Will Aid Work of Peace When Time Comes.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.-In the current appearance today, Theodore Roosevelt, who was formerly a contributing editor, discusses the European conflagration in an article entitled:

'The world war; its tragedies and its

Colonel Roosevelt records the claims and counter claims of the belligerent Powers and expresses profound gratitude that the United States, of all the great is able at such a time to be the medium civilized nations, "stands unshaken by the present world-wide war." In part the article says:

Colonel Roosevelt writes:

"Peace which leaves Belgium's wrongs unredressed and which does not have any effect against a recurrence such as those from which she has suffered, would not be real peace."

On the attitude of the United States,

"What action our Government can and will take I know not. It has been anunced that no action can be taken that will interfere with out neutrality. It s certainly eminently desirable that we should remain entirely neutral, and nothing but urgent need would warrant from our neutrality and taking sides one way or the othed. Our first duty is to hold ourselves ready to do whatever the changing circumstances demand, in order to protect our own interests in the present and in the future; although for my part I desire to add to this statement the provise that under no circumstances must we do anything dishonorable, especially toward unoffending weaker nations.

"Neutrality may be of prime necessity in order to preserve our own interests, to maintain peace in so much as we are not affected by the war and to conserve our help, toward the reestablishment of general peace when the time comes; for if any outside power for bringing peace it is more likely to be the United States than any other. But we pay the penalty for this action on behalf of peace for ourselves and possibly for others in the future by forfeiting our right to do anything on bepresent.

"We can maintain our neutrality only by refusal to da anything to aid unceffinding weak powers which are dragged into the gulf of bloodshed and misery through no fault of their own. It would be folly for us to jump into the gulf ourselves to no good purpose; and very probably noth-ing that we could have done would have helped Helgium."

Discussing the cause and provocations which led to the war, Colonel Roosevelt recites the claims and counter claims of recites the claims and counter claims of each of the warring nations. Russia, he thinks, could not have done otherwise than to aid Servia, because of the racial ties existing between them. Germany was led on by her close alliance to Austria-Hungary. Ffrance was led on to support Russia and "when once Belgium was in-vaded every circumstance of national honor forced England to act as she did."
"At this moment, for instance, Japan has declared war against Germany. She has paid scrupulous regard to our own rights and feelings in the matter. The contention that she is acting in a spirit of mere disinterested altruism need not be considered. She believs that sh has wrongs to redress and strong national interests to preserve. Nine years ago Germany Joined with Russia to check Japan's progress after her victorious war with China, and since then itself built up a German colonial possession on Japanese soil. Doubtless Japan never for one mosoil. Doubtless Japan never for one mo-ment has forgotten this act of Germany."
